

Guidelines for US Distributors

Shenzhen IVPS Technology Co., Ltd. (hereinafter referred to as “the Company”), a manufacturer of Electronic Nicotine Delivery Systems (ENDS) based in China, distributes products in the United States through third-party distributors. Provided below are our distributor guidelines for maintaining compliance with applicable U.S. laws and regulations. To the extent that the Company’s distributors have sub-distributors, the Company recommends these guidelines to such sub-distributors, at the discretion of its distributors.

Compliance with Federal, State and Local Laws

All Company distributors are obligated to maintain compliance with all applicable Federal, State and Local laws and regulations, including:

- The Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act (FDCA) – see below
- State and Local Health Codes
- State and Local Licensing and Tax Programs – see attached summary
- State and Local Laws and Regulations Applicable to Distribution of the Company’s Products

With respect to the FDCA, as amended by the Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act, Company distributors that also engage in the manufacturing of Company products in the United States by, for example, repacking, relabeling, or filling semi-closed devices or pods with e-liquid, are also considered “manufacturers” who must, among other requirements, register their U.S. manufacturing establishments with and submit product lists to the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), pursuant to Section 905 of the FDCA.

In addition, such distributor-manufacturers must (1) submit ingredient reports to FDA for any products made or derived from tobacco, or made with consumable ingredients that are burned, aerosolized or ingested during tobacco product use, such as e-liquids filled into the Company’s semi-closed devices and pods; (2) submit health documents to FDA for such e-liquids, (3) comply with FDCA’s adulteration and misbranding provisions, and applicable tobacco product manufacturing practices (TPMP).

All distributors, whether manufacturers or not, must also:

Enter into a written agreement with the Company to do business, which shall include an indemnification provision negotiated by the parties.

6. Not modify any Company labels or advertising without express written permission.
7. Agree to abide by all FDA and state law requirements regarding advertising and marketing of tobacco products, and indemnify and hold harmless Company for any violations of such laws.
8. Agree not to market the Company's products for anything other than recreational adult vaping or as directed by the Company (i.e., no "off label" uses).
9. Ensure that it does not make, allow others within its control to make, or publicize or publish or distribute, any marketing materials, statements or claims, including but not limited to product review videos and articles (regardless of online or offline), without prior written authorization by Company regarding Company's products;
10. Obtain appropriate product liability and other insurance and include Company as an additional insured when applicable.

State Law Summary for Distributors

The below chart summarizes the licensing and vapor tax requirements in those states that have adopted them so far (e.g., Alaska, Arkansas, California, Delaware, Iowa, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, Utah and West Virginia).¹ These may apply to distributors doing business in these states. Distributors should confirm their own obligations and comply. Relevant state law definitions are provided at the end of the table.

State/ Jurisdiction	Type of Permits/Licenses Required	Vapor Specific Excise Tax	Additional Comments
Arkansas	See http://www.atc.arkansas.gov/forms	N/A - tobacco product tax does not apply to vapor	Online sales directly to consumers is prohibited. Sales can only be made to licensed Arkansas entities, and consumers can only purchase products in face-to-face transactions in retail locations.

¹ Please keep in mind that the chart in Exhibit A identifies taxes that are specifically designed to be imposed on e-liquids and vapor products, rather than general sales and use tax obligations, which are applied more broadly to goods and services. Moreover, although some information relating to unique labeling, age-verification and other legal requirements may be indicated for a few states in the chart, please note that the chart is not intended to be a complete summary of all such laws, beyond tax and licensing requirements.
